Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 02 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Similar to recently, staying largely dry with sunny spells later.

Today:
Any early drizzle will soon clear through the morning, leading to another dry day across the region. Cloud slightly breaking during the afternoon, giving sunny spells throughout. Feeling warm in any sunshine. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Tonight:
Some sunny spells, giving a bright but cooler evening. Cloud cover builds and becomes widespread again overnight, but conditions remain largely dry throughout. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Friday:
Some spots of drizzle in the early morning, but generally dry throughout. Some sunny spells, especially during the afternoon and evening as cloud breaks up. Feeling warm in any sunshine. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Mostly dry and settled, with variable cloud throughout this period allowing for sunny spells. Feeling pleasant in the sunshine. Possible rain in the west on Sunday. Breezy at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.